

L-plates don't pass test

Blueberry thrill

We got an e-mail from Kate Smith recently. She is an avid lover of Glenisk's range of yoghurts, one of which we reviewed recently and gave four stars to. She was, however, disappointed that we used their dessert range of yoghurts for the comparison. "The 'underground' range of Glenisk's yoghurts is pitched as a dessert and not as a savoury yoghurt," she writes. "Glenisk does a lovely blueberry yoghurt; it comes in a four-pack of 125ml pots. And it contains real blueberry pieces, unlike the 'underground' range." Fair enough.